Cold Weather Advisory In Effect For Mta New York City Transit Subways

All Weekend Construction Work is Cancelled

Due to inclement weather, all weekend construction work on the subway system has been cancelled. Subways will follow their normal weekend operating schedule except where affected by the severity of the weather.

MTA NYC Transit has a cold weather plan in effect. This means that trains will be stored underground rather than in yards. In addition, de-icer trains will be manned and operated throughout the weekend as needed. Under the plan, some express lines (AEDFNQ2345) may run local and service on weekday lines (BVW) may end early.

Transit aims to keep service running on or close to schedule and to keep customers informed. Customers may log on to www.mta.info. Under New York City Transit Service Advisories, there is a recent addition: "How Winter Weather Affects Subway Service." It will advise customers on what service changes may be in effect due to the weather.

Transit riders should also listen to local traffic and transit broadcasts or call NYC Transit's Travel Information line at 718-330-1234 between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. daily for the latest service updates.
