Roosevelt Island Tram Service Suspended Through August 2010

During efforts by The Roosevelt Island Operating Corporation (RIOC) to modernizing and upgrade the Tram, customers using the F train at Roosevelt Island station as an alternative should remember to board along the entire length of the platform to avoid overcrowding. In order to help disperse customers along the platform, NYC Transit is now operating the northernmost escalator leading to the downtown platform at the Roosevelt Island F station in the down direction around the clock in response to a request by the community.

Also due to construction activities surrounding these upgrades to the Tram, there is a temporary route modification for the Q102, relocating two bus stops. The southbound Q102 will travel its regular route south on Main Street. It will turn and continue on Main Street and will not use West Drive. The bus stop for the F station will be relocated to Main Street between Buildings 455 and 425. The bus stop at the Tram station will be relocated to the circle across from the Tram. From there, the Q102 bus will make a left out of the bus stop to East Road and on to its regular route toward Goldwater Hospital. Northbound Q102 service will remain unchanged.

For information on the Tram modernization project, please contact RIOC at 212-832-4540.
