LIRR Restores Service on Oyster Bay Branch and Portions of Montauk and Port Jefferson Branches for Tonight's PM Rush

The MTA Long Island Rail Road is restoring service for this evening's rush hour – Tuesday, August 30 – on the Oyster Bay Branch, the Montauk Branch between Babylon and Speonk, and on Port Jefferson Branch between Huntington and Smithtown. In addition to this newly restored service, the LIRR continues to operate full weekday service on the Far Rockaway, Babylon, Port Washington, Hempstead, Ronkonkoma, and West Hempstead branches.

Since there are still widespread local power outages at LIRR stations on these branches, as well as others, customers are advised that ticket selling machines and electronic audio/visual train announcement systems may not be operable. As a result, customers at stations where the service is operating, and the ticket selling machines are not operating, will not be charged the higher on-board fare for tickets purchased on the train.

"I want to thank LIRR customers for their patience as we continue to feel the effects of Hurricane Irene and our employees work around the clock to restore service," said LIRR President Helena E. Williams. "Our goal is to restore full service to all branches by start of the holiday weekend."

With the restoration of the evening rush hour service on the Oyster Bay and a portion of the Montauk Branch, customers are advised that some trains will be canceled and some trains will be operating with fewer than normal complement of cars. For the restored service east of Huntington on the Port Jefferson Branch, two trains will depart Hunterspoint Avenue for Smithtown during the evening rush. Then, after these two trains, a shuttle train will operate between Huntington and Smithtown at hourly intervals in each direction.
