Enjoy the 2011 ING NYC Marathon with MTA New York City Transit

On Sunday, November 6, tens of thousands of runners will compete in the 2011 ING NYC Marathon. MTA New York City Transit's subways and buses and your MetroCard will get you to the event from all parts of the city.

We've posted a customized Marathon subway map on the web tailored especially for this event at <http://mta.info/nyct/maps/MarathonMap.htm>. The map highlights the pre-race events as well as a number of great viewing locations throughout the city. As always, Transit's bus road operations team, our Operations Planning Division and the New York Road Runners are communicating about street closures and subway diversions that may impact bus and subway service. Be sure to check in at www.mta.info for the current service status of any MTA mode of travel that you plan to use. Remember that all travel information will take into account weekend planned service changes due to construction and maintenance projects.

On the Marathon map, we've also listed a number of tools and tips to assist customers when traveling, for instance, TripPlanner and our OnTheGo mobile service at <http://onthego.mta.info>. Customers may follow us on Twitter @nyctsubwayscoop and on our Facebook handle – MTA New York City Transit – throughout the weekend for travel updates or call 511, the New York State travel information line, for MTA customer service and travel information.
