Long Island Rail Road To Follow A Weekend Timetable On Wednesday Morning, February 2

West Hempstead and East of Ronkonkoma Service will be added

With the forecast of sleet and freezing rain through Wednesday morning, February 2, 2011, MTA Long Island Rail Road will operate on a weekend timetable during the morning as a result of the effects of the storm on the tracks and equipment. Additionally, the LIRR will provide service on the West Hempstead Branch and on the Main Line east of Ronkonkoma. Peak fares will be in effect.

The forecast calls for rising temperatures and the LIRR will gradually restore service to a weekday schedule.

Freezing rain and ice may cause severe impacts on the operation of the LIRR. While the LIRR's goal is to keep operating as long as possible during an ice storm, to protect the safety of our customers and employees, we may have to reduce or suspend service if icing affects the ability of our electric trains to properly draw power from the electrified third rail. Since nearly 80 percent of LIRR service is electric, our trains must be able to maintain good contact with the third rail to draw sufficient power? or there's the risk of a train becoming disabled.

The weekend timetable in effect on Wednesday morning, February 2 will include the addition of the train service on the West Hempstead Branch and East of Ronkonkoma as detailed below:

When at stations during a storm, we urge customers to listen to announcements and to take extra care when traveling. Stay clear of the platform edges, use handrails on staircases and walk carefully when entering or exiting stations and boarding or leaving trains.

Before venturing out in the storm, it remains critical that customers monitor the MTA website, www.mta.info, listen to news media and traffic reporting services, or call the LIRR's Travel Information Center for the latest information.
