Most Train Service Resumes Monday on Pascack Valley and Port Jervis

One Round-trip on PJL and Two on PVL Remain Suspended

Beginning Monday, November 19, nearly normal rail service is being restored on MTA Metro-North Railroad's Port Jervis and Pascack Valley lines. Trains will stop at both Secaucus and Hoboken.

Only one round-trip on the Port Jervis will not operate. The first off-peak inbound train after the rush hour, #56, the 7:46 AM departure from Port Jervis will not operate. And the last PM Peak train, #63, 7:02 PM out of Hoboken that arrives in Port Jervis at 9:10 PM, will not operate.

The New York State expresses, trains #50 and #59, that operate to/from Harriman with no stops in New Jersey WILL operate, for a total of 12 trains in each direction.

Most scheduled trains in the pre-storm timetables will operate on the Pascack Valley Line beginning Monday, with 11 trains in each direction. Starting Monday, November 19, service between Spring Valley and Hoboken will operate on a weekday schedule - including stops in Secaucus - with the following exceptions: Inbound train #1618, the 7:59 AM departure from Spring Valley, is cancelled. Inbound train #1622, the 8:51 AM departure from Spring Valley, will not operate between Spring Valley and River Edge. Outbound trains #1623, the 3:57 PM departure from Hoboken, and #1639, the 7:20 PM departure from Hoboken, are cancelled.

In addition, today all regularly scheduled weekend trains, as shown in pre-storm timetables, WILL operate on both West-of-Hudson lines. The Port Jervis and Pascack Valley lines are operated by NJTRANSIT under contract to Metro-North.

Metro-North customers should check njtransit.com for schedules. Service information is also available by calling (973) 275-5555.
