Six At-Grade Crossings in South Norwalk Will be Wired for Signals

For 12 consecutive days beginning tomorrow, Saturday, September 22, Metro-North Railroad forces will be upgrading six crossings on the Danbury Branch, all in South Norwalk.

The work will begin at Cross Street and move on to Catherine Street, New Canaan Avenue, Broad Street, Perry Avenue, and finally Glover Avenue finishing on October 3.

Communications & Signal workers will be installing wiring and electronic components that will operate the gates and flashers at these six roadways that cross the Danbury Branch tracks.

Work will proceed in two shifts beginning at about 3 a.m. and finishing at around 9 p.m. each day.

Train service will not be affected. The roads also will remain open to traffic while the work is underway.

This work is being performed as part of the Danbury signalization project, which is scheduled to be completed in 2013.
