Manhattan-bound Brighton Q Line Platforms at Three Stations to Re-open After 4-Month Closure

Brooklyn-bound Platforms Set to Close in Early 2014

On Monday, October 28 at 5 a.m., MTA New York City Transit will re-open the newly refurbished northbound platforms of the  Line stations at Cortelyou Road, Beverley Road and Parkside Avenue in Brooklyn – a full two weeks earlier than scheduled.

The platforms were closed in July for station component work consisting of painting, concrete repair and water leak mitigation at all three stations. In addition, workers replaced the steel stairs at Beverley Road, repaired concrete columns at Parkside Avenue and steel columns at Cortelyou and Beverley Roads.

The Brooklyn-bound side of these stations will close from February to June 2014 to continue the component work. Service notices will be posted in all stations along the Brighton  Line and announcements will be made on trains. Customers may log on to www.mta.info and click on Planned Service Changes for up-to-date information.

Remember that TripPlanner+ provides travel information that takes all service diversions into account. In addition, customers can receive customized subway diversion e-mails delivered to their inbox by signing up for the E-mail Subscription Program.
