New Haven Line Service Update for Saturday Morning

Metro-North train service on Saturday, May 18, will remain suspended between South Norwalk and New Haven until further notice.

Reduced, hourly service will operate between South Norwalk Station and Grand Central Terminal. Regular service will operate between Stamford and Grand Central Terminal.

Regular service will be in effect on the New Canaan and Danbury Branches. Bus service will be in effect between Waterbury and Bridgeport with no train connections.

Yankee game day service will be in effect between Stamford and Yankees-E. 153rd Street Station.

For train schedule information, please visit the schedules page at http://as0.mta.info/mnr/schedules/sched\_form.cfm

There are four tracks in this segment of the New Haven Line, but two of those tracks are out of service for a long-term project to replace overhead wires. On the remaining two tracks, there was extensive infrastructure damage as a result of a Friday evening train collision. Both the track and the overhead wire have been damaged. The train cars cannot be removed until the on-scene investigation is complete, and they will need to be removed by crane.

Normal service through this area is not expected to resume until a full investigation is complete, the infrastructure is fully assessed, and repairs are made.

As more information becomes available we will notify you as soon as possible. Please visit mta.info for updates and listen for announcements at your station.
