B'way Musical 'Nice Work If You Can Get It' Even Nicer with Deal That Lets You Save Up to 35% on Show Tickets & Ride LIRR Free

No Better Way to See Tony Winner Matthew Broderick at the Imperial Theatre

It's one of Broadway's biggest hits starring one of New York's favorite musical comedy stars and now MTA Long Island Rail Road and the producers of "Nice Work If You Can Get It" want to get you in to see Matthew Broderick and a talented supporting cast at a big savings.

Through June 15, you can ride free on the Long Island Rail Road to and from Manhattan and save as much as 35% on select performances when you take advantage of this offer. That's right. Ride free and see the show at the Imperial Theater for as little as $89 by calling Telecharge at 212-947-8844, ordering tickets online at www.broadwayoffers.com or heading over to the theater box office. Go to www.mta.info/lirr and click on Deals and Getaways for specific details.

It's the Roaring Twenties and a cast of outrageous characters gathers in New York to celebrate the wedding of a wealthy playboy (two-time Tony Award Winner Broderick). But things don't go as planned and the playboy meets a bubbly and feisty bootlegger who melts his heart. It's Broderick's co-star Jessie Mueller who heats up the stage. It's an evening bursting with girls, glamor and the glorious songs of George and Ira Gershwin.

Through the years, the LIRR has taken pride in offering its customers the best that Broadway has to offer at prices that makes it easy to leave the car at home. Similar deals are currently available on two other popular Broadway shows, "Spiderman: Turn Off the Dark," at the Foxwoods Theater and "Rock of Ages," at the Helen Hayes Theater.
