Metro-North Announces Departure Times for Last Trains to Operate Today

The Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA) today announced the departure times for the final trains expected to operate on all Metro-North lines. Customers are urged not to wait until the last train, but to consider leaving earlier. For full schedule information, please visit our schedules page at mta.info or use the Metro-North Train Time app.

New Haven Line

Connecticut will shut down all roads at 9 p.m., which means people who take the last train out may be in violation of that curfew, unless they walk, and are advised to act accordingly.

Outbound

The last train to New Haven will depart Grand Central at 9:39 p.m. This train usually terminates at Stamford, but will be extended to New Haven, making all local stops. It is also the last train that will provide a connection to Danbury.

The last train that will provide a connection to New Canaan will depart GCT at 9:06 p.m. and connect at Stamford at 9:53 p.m.

The last outbound train that will provide a connection to Waterbury will depart GCT at 6:53 p.m.

Inbound

The last inbound train from New Haven will depart at 8:47 p.m.

The last inbound train from Stamford will depart at 10:04 p.m.

The last southbound from Waterbury will depart at 9:58 p.m. but will go only as far as Stamford, no connection to GCT.

The last southbound from Danbury will depart at 9:27 p.m. and terminates at Stamford with no connection.

The last southbound departure from New Canaan will depart at 10:28 p.m. and will terminate at Stamford with no connection.
