Take Metro-North to Hudson Valley Restaurant Week Hot Spots

Now is the time to enjoy a top-notch meal located just steps away from the train. Hudson Valley Restaurant Week is taking place now through March 20. Over 200 restaurants are participating this year, and 100 of them are located near Metro-North Railroad stations on the Harlem, Hudson, New Haven and Port Jervis Lines.

The multi-county dining event is offering three-course dinners for $29.95 and lunches for $20.95 (plus drinks, tax and tip). While reservations are strongly recommended and often required, diners don't have to worry about passes, tickets or coupons. Simply choose from a list of restaurants at www.HudsonValleyRestaurantWeek.com, then purchase rail tickets to the nearest Metro-North station.

"The Hudson Valley is home to some of the best chef's in America," says Janet Crawshaw, Hudson Valley Restaurant Week founder and publisher of The Valley Table magazine. "We are delighted to partner with MTA Metro-North in inviting people from throughout the New York Metro area to discover the culinary pleasures of the region."

The Hudson Valley prides itself on its agriculture and many of the area's locally grown produce, in addition to meats and cheeses, are often included on chef's menus. Expect to also see a number of reds and whites from local wineries featured on wine lists during Hudson Valley Restaurant Week. To stock up on New York State dairy products, wines, craft beers, sauces, maple syrups and snack foods while away from the dinner table, visit the Taste NY store in Grand Central Terminal. Visit taste.ny.gov for more information.
